The NYO Games:

A timeless tradition

For thousands of years and countless generations, survival for Alaska Native people depended not only on individual strength, skill, and knowledge, but also on the ability to work together toward common goals.

Traditional athletic contests and games helped develop these and other skills critical to everyday life in the challenging Alaska environment.

Today's NYO Games Alaska carries on in this spirit by encouraging young people to strive for their personal best while helping and supporting their teammates—even other teams. ❖

Our Story

Cook Inlet Tribal Council (CITC) is a Tribal nonprofit organization serving Alaska Native and American Indian people residing in the Cook Inlet region of southcentral Alaska.

As one of the nation's preeminent culturally responsive social-service organizations, we assist our people in reaching their often-untapped potential. We believe that when we work together, we can help each other develop our strengths and talents to become successful and self-sufficient individuals, families, and communities.

Established in 1983, CITC serves more than 20,000 people each year through an array of integrated programs and employs more than 400 passionate and caring individuals. Our programs include education and youth services, employment and training services, career development, family preservation, and support for individuals recovering from addiction, substance abuse, or incarceration.

Through our subsidiaries The Alaska Native Justice Center and Clare Swan Early Learning Center, we address Alaska Native people's unmet needs within the Alaska civil and criminal justice system and support working families with child care through an Early Head Start curriculum.

Come as you are. There's no judgment here. Whether you need support in finding work, earning a new certification, learning parenting skills, recovering from addiction, or exploring STEM programs in our Fab Lab—there's a place for you at CITC. Individuals, families, and youth—we meet you where you are. Your journey begins today. ❖
